QUICK WORK.

New Hibernian Hall at Seventh and Market Ready For Occupancy.

Will Be Turned Over to Divisions Next Tuesday Night.

Division 1 Will Initiate Large Class Under the New Ritual.

ALL MEMBERS INVITED TO ATTEND

The news last week that the Ancient Order of Hibernians had secured a new hall created something of a sensation among the members, who will be still more surprised to learn that the new home is now ready for occupancy and will be formally opened at the meeting of Division 1 next Tuesday night.

The hall is located on the southwest corner Seventh and Market streets, and occupies the entire second floor over Taylor's dry goods store, the entrance being on Seventh street. During the past two weeks the Hall Board has had painters, electricians, decorators and upholsters at work every day, Mike Walsh having the contract for the painting and Joseph Hubbuch doing the decorating and furnishing the carpets. The hall and ante-room will be lighted by electricity, handsome fixtures having been placed therein by John Cronan, the well known Third-street electrician.

Fine taste has been displayed in the arrangement of the officers' stations and furniture, which is all handsome, particularly the chairs donated by the divisions for the officers. The carpets and furnishings are brilliant in color, and a most agreeable surprise awaits all who attend the opening. Messrs. Tom Keenan and James Coleman have had charge of the work, which they have had executed with surprising rapidity.

Tuesday night the paraphernalia for the new ritual will be exhibited for the first time, when Division 1 will have a class of twelve to initiate. The degree team has for weeks been preparing for this exemplification of the degrees. They are instructive and interesting, surpassing in all respects the expectations of the most exacting. The County Board has spared no expense, and Louisville will possess an outfit unsurpassed by any in this country. Members of all divisions are extended an invitation to be present that night, and also on the night following, when the third and fourth degrees will be conferred at the meeting of Division 4.

President Dolan and Secretary Tynan, of Division 1, have issued cards to the members notifying them of the annual election of officers, which also takes place Tuesday night. Those who have served during the past year have done so with satisfaction to the membership, and the changes in officers will be few if any. The gentlemen to be initiated are all well known and will add material strength to the oldest division in Louisville.

Division 2 will assemble next Thursday night, and altogether the week promises to be the liveliest and most important in Hibernian circles for many years past. Because of all this work the order will this year forego its annual Fourth of July picnic, but it is probable that steps will soon be taken for a union celebration by the entire membership.

CEDAR GROVE.

Misses Ernestine Werst and Marie Bosche This Year's Graduates.

The graduating exercises of St. Benedict's Academy, Cedar Grove, took place Wednesday morning at the beautiful St. Anthony's Hall, Twenty-third and Market streets. A large audience had gathered at an early hour to witness this gala-day of the old Alma Mater. The two young ladies on whom the institution was to confer the graduating honors, were Misses Ernestine Werst and Marie Irma Bosche. Unlike to other commencement exercises we noticed here a pleasing innovation, consisting in the crowning of the two young lady graduates immediately after the valedictory played by the academy orchestra.

The programme, consisting of musical selections, drills, tableaux and recitations, was rendered by the pupils with admirable precision, and we may add with unusual eloquence. We can not refrain from mentioning especially the sweet and merry crowd of "Little Gleamers;" the "Combination Drill," remarkable for the elegant and graceful movements of the senior class, and the unique "Bells," where the merry sleigh bells, the joyful wedding bells, the interesting fire bells and the mournful funeral bells, were pictured in words, songs, costumes and tableaux simply to perfection. Of the musical and spectacular part of the programme "The Bells" unquestionably were the most novel and the most pleasing. Miss Ernestine Werst delivered the valedictory, which as a composition and sample of elocution deserves the highest praise. "On the Portals of the Future" was the title of this essay. The youthful author showed herself master of the occasion, and voiced admirably the thrilling emotions which necessarily fill a young heart at the closing hour of her happy school days, standing at the threshold of a future so unlike to the past, a future so full of uncertainties as to dangers, joys and sorrows; sadly tearing herself away from those hallowed walls, the scene of her earnest aspirations to intellectual proficiency and of true happiness; drawing courage and strength only from that thoroughly Christian education she has received, an education not only in science, but also in solid virtue. It is but doing her justice to compliment Miss Werst upon her natural rendition, her sweet delivery, the ease and gracefulness with which she accomplished the arduous task of valedictory. She deserves to be heartily congratulated upon her talent, earnest work and success. These the institution duly recognized when four gold medals, that of literary merit, of scholarship, of deportment and of music were awarded her amid the applause of the audience.

LAWN FETE.

A Generous Reception Awaits Visitors to Clifton Tuesday Night.

A number of the leading ladies and gentlemen residing in Clifton have arranged for an enjoyable social lawn fete next Tuesday afternoon and evening, to be held on Rev. Father White's lawn. The children will be entertained from 3 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. All who attend will be treated to ice cream and cake, and in addition there will be an elaborate supper served by the ladies. A number of handsome prizes will be distributed in a novel manner, which will add interest to this affair. It may properly be remarked that there is no prettier suburban place than Father White's lawn in Clifton, and a generous reception awaits all who attend. The reverend gentleman is one of the best known clergymen in Louisville, and as the cars pass his place the grounds should be filled with his friends from all parts of the city. Those of our readers who would spend a really pleasant evening and enjoy the pure country air should bear this fete in mind.

The general management of this fete and reception has been placed in the hands of Mrs. Kate Orth and Misses Rose Shea and M. Merrimee, and they will be assisted by Secretary Ed Burke and Treasurer John Donahue. A pleasing feature will be the presentation of pretty gold medals to those young ladies who sell over fifty tickets, of whom there are several. Special committees will look after the comfort and enjoyment of the visitors as follows:

Dining Hall—Messrs. Oeswein, Boldt, Trench, Maguire, Marrs and Flanagan.

Refreshments—Misses Rose Shea, Hetie Dohahue, Julia Holloran, Nellie Donahue, Mary Shockey, Anna Leahy and Nellie Hannan.

Prizes—Messrs. Joseph Kessack, George Martin, H. Merrimee and Girard Alexander.

Custodians—Messrs. Owen Keiran, Thomas Hannan, Dan Leahy and Joseph Oeswein.

FAVOR THE UNION.

Catholic Knights Take Steps Toward Their Annual Celebration.

The regular monthly meeting of the Central Committee of the Catholic Knights of America at St. Mary's Hall was attended by delegates from all the branches, Messrs. John Recktenwald and H. E. Koetter representing Branch 7 of New Albany, the last one admitted.

President Edward J. McDermott, of the Catholic Union, delivered an able address, as did also Newton G. Rogers and William C. Smith, after which a motion was unanimously adopted recommending all branches to affiliate with the Catholic Union.

President Veeneman appointed Messrs. Michael Reichert, William T. Meehan, Joe McGinn, Edmund Rapp and George Schlafer a special committee to devise ways and means for holding the annual celebration.

Delegates Veeneman and McGinn made their reports, which gave general satisfaction. Both were commended for their watchfulness and good work at the national convention.

FOR THE BIG DAY.

The Trinity Minstrel Company now predict the greatest Fourth of July celebration ever witnessed in Louisville, as they will spare neither labor nor expense. The following are the officers making the arrangements:

President—James B. Kelly.
Vice President—Ben Hund.
Secretary—Tom Garvey.
Treasurer—Joe Piazza.

Executive Committee—Joseph Kirchdorfer, Edward Bosler, Will Gast.
The Young Ladies' Auxiliary will serve a bounteous supper and refreshments.

CONVALESCING.

John T. Rodgers, who four weeks ago suffered an attack of muscular rheumatism that has since confined him to his home, 1923 Bank street, was yesterday reported much better. Next week he will leave for Martinsville, accompanied by his wife. His friends hope for his entire recovery and speedy return home.

NASHVILLE.

Knights of Columbus Hold Their Second Initiation and Banquet.

Eighty-Five Candidates Admitted From All Parts of the South.

Hon. Edward J. McDermott Delivers the Principal Address.

BISHOP BYRNE WELCOMES VISITORS

The recent initiation and banquet of Nashville Council of the Knights of Columbus took place last Sunday, when eighty-five candidates from all parts of the South were admitted to membership. About 200 visiting members were present, many of the number being from Louisville. A special mass was celebrated at the Cathedral at which all the Knights were present in a body. Rev. Father John Morris, Chaplain of the Nashville Council, was the celebrant, and during his sermon took occasion to pay a handsome tribute to the great good the Knights of Columbus are doing among the Catholic laymen of the country. After the mass the Knights and candidates repaired to Watkins' Hall, where the degrees were conferred. What followed is thus told by the Nashville American:

When the initiation was over the Knights repaired to the Conservatory of Music, where an elaborate banquet was spread. None of the hotels were able to accommodate the crowd, and the selection of the spacious Conservatory of Music proved a happy solution to the problem. Long tables were arranged in the concert hall, which was fittingly decorated in honor of the occasion. Smaller tables were placed on the cool verandas of the old-fashioned building, and the visiting Knights were given the preference of this inviting place.

After the elaborate menu had been fully enjoyed and the cigars passed around the speechmaking began. Hon. M. T. Bryan acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers in a happy and delightful manner.

The Knights were given a cordial and hospitable welcome by Right Rev. Bishop Byrne, who sat in the center of the toastmaster's table. Bishop Byrne spoke of the magnificent showing the Knights of Columbus had made in recent years, and said he looked forward to it with keen anticipation of the great good that would result from it. He spoke of the value of Catholic laymen in the upbuilding of the church and admonished those present to make their daily lives an example of all that is good and holy. "A good, honest, upright, noble Catholic man," he said, "one who is fair in all his dealings, pure in his thoughts and actions and charitable to his fellow-men, has more influence for good in a community than a dozen sermons. Let your lives be such that the men of the world will regard you with respect and admiration. This is what it means to be a good, practical Catholic."

The first speaker to follow Bishop Byrne was Hon. Edward J. McDermott, from Kentucky, and one of the most gifted of that State's orators. His toast was "Leo the Thirteenth." He was introduced in a pleasant way by Toastmaster Bryan and was greeted with a tremendous outburst of applause. He said in part:

"Though I am sensible of the honor shown me by the request for a speech on the toast of Leo XIII., I feel that I, a layman, shall not be able to express fittingly the admiration, reverence and love due from us and from all high-minded men to the great Pontiff who, in his ninety-second year, after twenty-three memorable years of service in his high office, in spite of all sorts of trying difficulties and dangers, in spite of atheists and hostile fanatics, in spite of petty Italian politicians and of innumerable enemies of the church in many lands, without any bayonets to sustain him, still sits in majesty on the imperishable throne of Peter. His influence in the world still outweighs the power of any king or emperor. He relies not upon brute force, but upon conscience and the word of God."

"In the first place, he is a practical man. In his youth he was a learned, skillful diplomat, and experience has increased his power. As Bishop of Perugia he not only founded schools, colleges, hospitals and churches, but he built good roads and encouraged thrift and fostered agriculture. He takes a high and broad view of the affairs of the world. He knows well the weak points and strong points of that modern Zeitgeist which many praise and few understand. Socialism, commercialism, militarism and atheism he knows thoroughly, and against them he has hurled his shining lance with tremendous power. He spares no folly or wrong among the rich or the poor. Though he was born of an aristocratic and titled family, he has always led an austere life. Idleness and luxury he has scorned. His sympathies have been with the poor, and yet in his great encyclicals on capital and labor he has given no countenance to envy or injustice or riot on the one side, nor to greed nor to oppression on the other.

"In the promotion of learning and literature he has won the admiration and the gratitude of scholars. He has told the laity and the clergy that they must foster education in good primary schools and in broad, thorough-going universities. He has told the clergy again and again that they must lead in intellectual excellence as well as in holiness of life. He has told us that a model priest must have the priestly spirit; that he must lead a pure, self-sacrificing, exemplary life; that he must have priestly knowledge, both secular and ecclesiastical learning of a wide range.

"In season and out of season he has sought to be a harbinger of peace to every nation afflicted by strife or bloodshed, to be a true and diligent representative of the Prince of Peace. Wherever grivings war has shown his wrinkled front this gentleman has sought to avoid the clash of arms and the spilling of blood, and yet he is no weakling or coward, as his firm suppression of brigandage at Benevento showed when he was quite a young man, but the representative of the Pope. Under his administration as Bishop of Perugia there came a time once when the prison did not contain a single criminal. He has labored, too, for charity and brotherly love among all men, for unity among all Christians, for fair and cool debate of religious dogmas. Discord and bitterness have been hateful to him. In his encyclical on Americanism he has given his approval of a well regulated liberty in his fold, of individual freedom of thought, speech and action within the limits of the moral law, and yet he abates no jot of those imperishable truths which he as the teacher of the immortal church must maintain in all their pristine strength and beauty.

"The marvelous growth of the church in this country under new and trying conditions, in an atmosphere which it was hoped by the enemies of the church would dwarf or stifle it, shows that nothing can overthrow it—that men and time try their strength against it in vain. We know that one of the chosen apostles betrayed his master; that another out of worldly respect thrice denied him; that the Pope does not claim to be incapable of sin or infallible as to science or governmental affairs and many other matters; but if the Popes, in the main, had not been good men and the church sound in its tenets and generally wise in its government it could not have stood the corroding influences of centuries of change and strife. From the day when the shackled St. Peter in the old Mamertine prison in Rome baptized his jailers and went joyfully to death, up to this hour, the Papacy has held its moral sway over ever increasing millions of men in all quarters of the earth. Rome, Rome Immortal, sanctified by the tears and blood of the early Christian martyrs, saved from ruin again and again by the power of the church in the early and middle ages, nourished and enriched by the offerings of Catholics of every Christian nation, may not honor him as she should, but we and all Catholics in this free republic, owing and giving allegiance in civil affairs only to our own flag and our own institutions, nevertheless reverent and love Leo the Thirteenth, and in matters falling properly within his sphere give him a true fidelity and a cordial support. We are proud of his goodness, his moral and intellectual grandeur, and his just fame. It is no blind fanatical, superstitious devotion. It rests upon a reasonable, solid foundation and all wise, high-minded, scholarly men can understand and respect, even if they do not share, our feelings.

"His mind, undimmed by age, rising above the dross and mist of error and his petty clamors, gleams before us like the moving star, preceding and foretelling the approach of a brighter, clearer and happier day. To many people he is an absurd or dreadful bogie, unlike anything in the heavens above or the earth beneath. To us he is not a god, not even a saint, not too good for nature's daily use, but pre-eminently a good man, a wise man, a religious man, full of human sympathy and charity. Long may he abide with us."

INDIANA KNIGHTS.

Hold Large and Enthusiastic Meeting in New Albany.

The Catholic Knights of New Albany held a large and enthusiastic meeting at Holy Trinity Hall last Sunday evening. All the branches in Southern Indiana were represented, many coming to hear the address of Dennis Gorman, the newly appointed national organizer.

Short but interesting speeches were made by Rev. Fathers Kelly and Underreiter, followed by Organizer Gorman, who explained to non-members the many benefits derived from membership in the Catholic Knights of America, dwelling at some length on the successful history of the organization and the proceedings of the late St. Louis convention. The Supreme Council has gone actively to work throughout the country, and he predicted that it would not be long till the reserve fund reaches the immense sum of $1,000,000.

Miss Eva Horn, the accomplished and pretty daughter of Bro. Horn, of Branch 7 of New Albany, gave a recitation entitled "The Maniac," which was well rendered and warmly applauded.

President Jonathan Thickett, of Branch 54 of Jeffersonville, made some spirited remarks, as did also President Frank Zoeller, of Branch 9 of New Albany. The meeting was held under the auspices of Branch 7, and will no doubt result in an increase of the membership.

Figs are aperient and wholesome. They are said to be valuable as a food for those suffering from cancer; they are used externally as well as internally.

UNITED LEAGUE.

Enthusiastic Meetings and New Branches Being Formed in Many Counties.

Great Gathering Adopts Resolutions at Grenagh, in County Cork.

Cablegrams From America Congratulating the Irish Party in Parliament.

IRISH REFORMS THAT ARE DEMANDED

On Sunday a great meeting, under the auspices of the United Irish League, was held at Grenagh, in the constituency of Mid-Cork, says the Dublin Weekly Freeman in its issue of June 8. The meeting was very largely attended and included several contingents from outlying districts. The chair was occupied by the Rev. Father Glaishear, and the speakers included Messrs J. C. Flynn, M. P.; E. Crean, M. P.; D. D. Sheehan, M. P.; J. J. Howard, Chairman Cork County Council, and Alderman Walsh. A couple of policemen were in attendance near the platform.

The Reverend Chairman, in opening the proceedings, asked the people to put their hands down deep into their pockets and show they were determined to support the Irish Parliamentary party. The people were, he said, under the strongest obligations to support their Parliamentary representatives.

Letters of apology were received from Rev. Father Kennedy, of Blarney; Rev. Father Griffin, of Donoghmore, and F. W. Mahony, of Blarney. On motion of John Daly, seconded by T. B. Healy, Chairman of the Macroom District Council, the following resolution was adopted:

"That we demand self-government, and pledge ourselves to carry on the fight until our legitimate rights are conceded by the granting of a legislative assembly in Dublin to make laws for the Irish people according to Irish ideas; that no settlement of the land question be deemed satisfactory until ownership of the land by the tiller under a scheme of compulsory sale and purchase which will also secure the reinstatement of evicted tenants and guard the interest of the laborers; that we protest against the manner in which this country is presently overtaxed; that we demand complete educational equality for the Catholics of Ireland, including the establishment and endowment of a university in whose benefits we can conscientiously participate; that we condemn landgrabbing in every shape and form, and hereby pledge ourselves to deal with it by every means wherever it shows its hateful head."

D. D. Sheehan, M. P., speaking as one who had been prominently identified with the labor movement in the past, said that, now that he had been elected to Parliament, he would do everything to promote the interests and advocate the grievances of all classes in the community. He referred to the courtesy with which he had been received by the members of the Irish party into their ranks. He maintained that they could have no peace, contentment or satisfactory solution of the land question in Ireland until the landlords were expropriated completely and absolutely from the land. It was the people's duty to the National movement and for the safeguarding of the farmers that landgrabbing should not be encouraged.

J. J. Howard, Chairman Cork County Council, congratulated the people on having secured as their representative for Mid-Cork a gentleman who could be relied on to look after the interests of his constituents, and one who was a valuable addition to the present useful party. The laborers, farmers and artisans were all more firmly united than ever, and determined to carry on the fight which was being waged under the United Irish League, which was no narrow or one-sided League, for it embraced every interest within the island of a truly Nationalist character.

Eugene Crean, M. P., appealed to every person in the district who was not a member of the League to immediately join its ranks. The people of America and Australia were ready to give a helping hand in the great movement, and nearly every day cablegrams were received in the House of Commons from those countries congratulating the Irish party on their great work there.

J. C. Flynn, M. P., in the course of a powerful speech, said that the work which lay before the organization and before the Irish Parliamentary party at present was no ordinary work of politics, as understood in the conventional sense in England, but it meant for them the retention by the people of Ireland of their native land.

On Saturday an important meeting to establish a branch of the United Irish League was held at Ballynagat, County Down. Rev. Father M'Bride presided over a very large attendance, and in a vigorous speech said T. W. Russell was fighting a good fight, but it was because he was following in good footsteps and had the whole strength of the United Irish League at his back. Compulsory purchase would be an advance, but Nationalists would not be satisfied till they would get home rule, and this was to be attained simply and solely by every man, woman and child joining the United Irish League. The Irish party were really united, thanks to the United Irish League, which William O'Brien had almost exhausted himself in bringing to be such a glorious power for Ireland. Those of them who read the papers could see the brilliant work the party is doing in the alien Parliament. They were the real opposition in the House of Commons, because they were united and their hearts were in their work. Resolutions demanding Irish reforms were adopted, and a strong branch of the league was formed.

On Sunday a splendid public meeting was held at Cloonfad, in support of the principles of the United Irish League. It is situated on the borders of North Galway, South Mayo and South Roscommon, and as the places around are thickly populated the meeting was exceedingly large, and the greatest enthusiasm and determination characterized the proceedings throughout. The platform was erected at the end of the village, and the square was almost filled with people. Martin Owens presided and stirring speeches were made by John O'Donnell, M. P., Michael Delaney, Francis Burke, Thomas Higgins and William Cunnane, of the Knock branch.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Listry branch of the United Irish League was held at the Chapel Cross on Sunday. The member for the division, John Murphy, M. P., attended and received a warm ovation. Morty Buckley presided.

A very successful meeting was held at Tierneevan, near Gort, County Galway, on Sunday, for the purpose of establishing a branch of the United Irish League. In the absence of the Rev. Father Sweeney the chair was taken by John Quinn. The Chairman briefly and clearly explained the objects of the meeting, and said that it was gratifying to see the people of the parish supporting the cause of the United Irish League. W. J. Duffy, M. P., and James Lynham, who were received with loud cheers, addressed the meeting, and a branch of the United Irish League was then formed, and over eighty members enrolled. D. F. Burke being the first to set the example by giving a generous subscription. John Quinn was appointed President, Martin Nestor Treasurer and Michael Mitchell Secretary.

ROYAL IRISH STYLE.

That's How Branch 24 Entered the Central Committee.

Members of the Central Committee of the Catholic Knights of America visited their Limerick brethren at the meeting of Branch 24 Tuesday evening, and all those present were delighted with their reception. This branch has been growing steadily, President McGinn announcing that five members had been initiated at the preceding meeting.

There was a large attendance present when President McGinn introduced the visitors, among whom were State Officers Reichert and Score, Jonathan Thickett of Jeffersonville, Henry Veeneman, William T. Meehan, Supreme Trustee William C. Smith, John Sheridan, Louis Hamel, Peter Dowling, John Ruddy, J. Henkle, and several members from Branch 32, nearly all of whom made short talks, complimenting Branch 24, several expressing the hope that other branches would observe its example in arousing the members to attend meetings and become acquainted with the Central Committee.

Before adjourning the visitors were invited to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Wolf, Eighth and Oldham streets, where they were seated before bountifully laden tables and feasted in royal Irish style. This was the most delightful affair ever tendered the Knights, who departed with loud praises for Mrs. Wolf, whose charming manner and unbounded hospitality delighted every one. The toast to the host and hostess was drunk amid hearty cheers.

MODEL COFFEE STORE.

John M. Mulloy, who for years past has enjoyed a large coffee and tea trade, has moved from Fourth street to West Market, between Sixth and Seventh, where he has the most modern and best equipped coffee and tea store in the Southwest. His formal opening will not take place till next week, when the public will be invited to visit the store and witness his method of roasting coffee fresh every day. This is the only house that will allow public inspection of its interior workings.

MARY CONNELL WINS.

The committee of the Third Order of St. Francis this week awarded the gold watch to Miss Mary Connell, a young girl employed in the dressmaking department of the John C. Lewis Company, hers being the highest number. The drawing took place in St. Francis Hall. Books on the watch were closed last week, and a goodly sum for the poor was realized.

POPULAR OFFICIAL.

Charlie McCarthy, the well known turnkey at the jail, is considered one of Jailor Pfanz's most popular deputies, and can be counted on to help his superior wonderfully in the coming primary, as he has a large following in his district—Limerick. Charlie is ever ready to welcome his friends at the jail, but hopes none may need his services in an official way.

CATHEDRAL CELEBRATION.

Tickets are out for the annual outing of the Cathedral societies, which will be held this year at Riverview Park on Wednesday, July 17. The Cathedral celebrations are always largely attended and very enjoyable.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Hibernians Enthusiastic Over Their Success During the Past Year.

John Cavanaugh the Unanimous Choice For Division President.

Jeffersonville Honors Robert Gleason With Another Full Term.

GREAT INTEREST WAS MANIFESTED

The Hibernians of Louisville, New Albany and Jeffersonville have enjoyed another year of unprecedented prosperity and success, all divisions having increased in membership and finances. This has been due in great measure to the zealous work of the officers, all of whom have been untiring in their efforts to make the Ancient Order of Hibernians a more representative Irish organization whenever and wherever possible.

The annual elections occur during the month of June, and the interest taken therein this year was greater than ever before. Division 4 last week held the first election, which resulted in the choice of all its old officers.

Monday night Division 3 held the largest meeting that has assembled this year, with President John Cavanaugh in the chair. Besides the regular routine business it was resolved to hold only monthly sessions during the months of July, August and September, meeting on the first Monday of each month.

The division members of the Hall Board made their report, after which it was unanimously voted to purchase for the new hall an officer's chair of handsome design. Patrick Holly entertained the members with an eloquent address of unity, and many take this to mean that the division will before long make its headquarters in Hibernian Hall.

The election of officers then took place, the vote for each being unanimous:

President—John Cavanaugh.
Vice President—Michael Hoban.
Recording Secretary—Patrick T. Sullivan.
Financial Secretary—Nicholas J. Liden.

Treasurer—George J. Butler.
Sergeant-at-Arms—Patrick Begley.
Sentinel—Hugh J. Higgins.
Standing Committee—Denny Coleman, Lawrence Mackey, James Brown, Joseph Cooney and Phil Cavanaugh.

Tuesday night there was an immense turnout at the meeting of Division 1 in Jeffersonville, over one hundred members being present. Peter Reilly was initiated as an honorary member and one application was referred. The Visiting Committee reported William Coyle as almost entirely recovered from the accident which befell him recently, with no members on the sick list. After the transaction of the usual business the election of officers was gone into, with the following result:

President—Robert Gleason.
Vice President—B. A. Coll.
Treasurer—Michael Kinney.
Recording Secretary—John J. Devitt.
Financial Secretary—Frank Hogan.
Standing Committee—William Covle, Richard Kennedy, Pat Dixon, John Hogan, Con O'Neill.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Thomas Horan.
Sentinel—Steve Breen.
Marshal—Mike Noon.

The only contests were for places on the Standing Committee and Sergeant-at-Arms, which were close and exciting. The division accepted an invitation to be present at the opening of the new Hibernian Hall in Louisville next Tuesday night and then adjourned for a social session of an hour, during which refreshments of all kinds and cigars were served everybody.

The officers selected thus far are all tried men, who will have the hearty support of the entire membership during the coming year. They will be installed by their respective County Presidents at their next meeting.

MAYME KILEY.

Popular Young Lady President of Trinity Council Auxiliary.

The Young Ladies' Auxiliary of Trinity Council, V. M. L., held their annual election of officers at the club house on East Gray street Tuesday night, resulting as follows:

President—Mayme Kiley.
Vice President—Josephine Hoertz.
Treasurer—Alice Ellard.
Recording Secretary—Mayme Fink.
Financial Secretary—Mrs. James B. Kelly.
Cor. Secretary—Gertrude Hukenbeck.
Marshal—Lillie Ackermann.

The organization is to be congratulated upon the selection of the foregoing officers, who are all popular young ladies of loveable disposition and pleasing traits of character, especially Miss Mayme Kiley, whose hosts of friends are elated over her election. For two years she was Recording Secretary of this well-known society.

ALL GOOD MEN.

The gentlemen named by the Democratic party as candidates for the General Council are all good men, and from present indications they will be elected. Professional, mercantile, manufacturing, business and laboring men have all been recognized.

The interests of Louisville are certain of advancement when placed in the hands of such well known citizens as Nathan M. Uri, William J. O'Hearn, James J. Fitzgerald, Paul Barth and Humphrey Knecht, who are candidates for Aldermen.

The nominees for Councilmen are all well known in their respective wards and throughout the city. Such names as Albert S. Smith, Alvah L. Terry, John Baron, A. J. Domeck, S. S. Bliz, Herman Christen and Augustus Miller add great strength to the ticket, which fact has been recognized by the Republicans, the Commercial declaring that unless they name a ticket equally as strong there is no hope for that party's success in November. Lack of space prevents us from giving more extended notice this week.

WHAT AILS PATRICK?

This is a very modern age and a number of modern people live in it. Most of us have heard of poor Miss Hickey who went off to school named Margaret and in a few months returned named Marguerite. I have heard also of that other young lady who left home named Bridget O'Brien and sent back letters a week later signed Bride Obrionn. Her friends pitied her, believing she had forgotten how to spell her name. Others concluded she had married and telegraphed congratulations. Folly of this kind belongs to the sweet girl graduate—sometimes.

What, however, are we to think of fathers and mothers who deliberately insist on their children being named Marguerite Hickey, Bride O'Brien and Patrice Dolan? A few days ago we saw it chronicled that Miss Unphrosyne Elide Cusack had appeared in a church concert up at Chicago. Her voice was described as captivating, and we do not wonder, but would she not have sung quite as well as Miss Elizabeth Cusack? Patrice Dolan could climb the hills of fame quite as well if named Patrick. And then there's Miss Maudie O'Flaherty and Miss Marie Dooley—shade of 'Conn of the Hundred Battles, are the Irish in America all turning French?

Alas, it does so seem! What ails the name Patrick that it is no longer respectable? In the old Roman days it meant a patrician. Today it means disgrace to Patrick O'Dowd if he finds it attached to his surname. Day after day we find fewer people named Michael, and why? It is the name of an archangel. And Dennis, or its ancient form, Denis—well, we've laid that by entirely. Meanwhile the crop of Herman Dooleys, Harold McMahons and Edythe Fogarty's is on the increase, and we are sorry such is the case. Fifty years hence, no doubt, the Royal American Keltic Society may be advising that even the name of the shamrock shall be changed. Contemplate if you can without laughter a red-headed, freckle-faced, barefooted gossoon wading the mud and bearing the name Corneille De Castellan O'Doherty! The sign on the moon just now is that hereafter the recording angel is going to have a lot of trouble writing down Irish names.

The Boers have no small number of sympathizers even in London. At a meeting held Wednesday night strong resolutions of sympathy were adopted by an audience that filled Queen's Hall, to which thousands were unable to gain admission.

That was an excellent move of the Board of Trade in running a business men's excursion from this city to the Bluegrass counties. This friendly intermingling of our city and country merchants and manufacturers will prove of material benefit to Louisville and the entire section visited.

RELIGION THE REMEDY.

There is a masterly analysis of the latest encyclical of the Holy Father on "Christian Democracy," in the Catholic World Magazine for June. The hollowing of the many schemes that have been submitted for social betterment is becoming evident and the thinking people are settling down to the fact that there is but one great remedy, and that is the remedy that can come only through a wider diffusion of the spirit of religion. "All reform is four-square. Society can not be lifted up by a one-corner fulcrum. It must be a basic reform. In words more apt, the Holy Father declares they must apply themselves with undiminished ardor to the perfection of the spirit. The priest's field is the whole social world. By example and precept he must induce the people to cultivate peace, to avoid rabble and rioting, to do justice willingly, to love domestic life, and above all to practice religion, in emulation of the perfect model, the Holy Family of Nazareth. The priest must urge the business man to do business in true, high and incorruptible principles; from the stockholder he must demand his vote, voice and influence for the inviolable rights of his humblest employee; he must insist that the public officer stand unflinchingly for public righteousness and against all commerce with the devil in approving or licensing iniquity for public or private revenue; he must convince judge, lawyer, teacher and legislator that he is under vows to savor with Christian grace every secular function he may be called upon to discharge. In a word, the priest by his very position is fitted and should reach the remotest muscle and nerve of the body politic and the body social. This vast body should be a united power for God and the church. The priest as a skilled pilot should guide them safely through the Charybdis of false hatred, by the Scylla of forbidden and heretical organization, into the safe and peaceful harbor of Mother Church."

CHEERY PEOPLE.

There is but one thing like that—sunshine. It is the fashion to state the comparison the other end foremost, i. e., to flatter the cheery people by comparing them to the sun. I think it is the best way of praising the sunshine to say it is almost as bright and inspiring as the presence of cheery people. If there were only a sure and certain receipt for the making of a cheery person, how glad we would all be to try it! How thankful we would all be to do good like sunshine! To cheer everybody up and to help everybody along, to have everybody's face brighten the minute we came in sight! Why, it seems to me that there can not be in this life any pleasure half so great as this would be. If we look at life only from a selfish standpoint it would be worth while to be a cheery person merely because it would be such a satisfaction to have everybody so glad to live with us, to see us, even to meet us on the street.

THE BUSY PRIEST.

More than that of most men the life of a priest is full of change. Constantly must he pass straight from the font where he has poured the water of life over the newly born to administer in the chamber of suffering the last sacraments to the dying. Often he must leave the house of joy for the house of mourning and rise from the table of the marriage feast in order to bury the dead. He must go from the luxurious drawing room to the humble, sometimes squalid cottage; he must leave the altar for the world and society for the church. He must instruct the learned as well as the ignorant; he must be at the beck of high and low alike. He can not say, as might the doctor or lawyer: "This or that is not my business; why do you come to me?" Everything is the priest's business; every man, woman and child is his patient or client.

OFFICERS WERE ABSENT.

Owing to the absence of the officers, but little was done at the meeting of the Irish-American Society Thursday night. Robert J. Hagan, the young lawyer, was initiated, communications received and action postponed till the next meeting, which will be held in the new Hibernian Hall.

BRILLIANT ASSEMBLAGE.

Thomas Walsh's Address Before Alumni of St. Mary's College.

There was a brilliant assemblage to witness the eightieth annual commencement exercises at St. Mary's College in Marion county this week. The meeting of the Alumni took place Wednesday evening, Thomas Walsh, the well-known Louisville lawyer, delivering the principal address, which follows:

On life's hot and dusty highway we should sometimes pause and rest. On the green beside the streams beneath the trees. And review our scenes of childhood ere the shadows of the west Fall about us on the meadows and the leas.

It is pleasant to review the scenes of our youth, the scenes of the dreams, ambitions and aspirations of our early days, and compare them with the realizations of those same dreams in our later years. At the same time it is also pleasant and useful for us in this time to renew our friendly relations with the boon companions of our happy college days, relations which for many of us have existed ever since, and we trust will continue to exist till the gathering shadows of the dusk of life fall about us forever. These feelings may be termed purely sentimental, it is true, but after all what is life unless it is tinged and glorified by elevated sentiment and fine feeling? Fine feeling, splendid emotions, lofty aspirations and generous impulses constitute after all the better part of our being and distinguish us from the mere inanimate and animal creation that surrounds us. Despite the material and mercenary spirit of the age, despite its inordinate greed of gain and mad chase after the almighty dollar, still we all realize within ourselves that life is something grander, greater and better than mere money getting and money hoarding; that it is fraught with possibilities immeasurable in their reach; that it stretches away beyond the shoals and shadows of time into spheres of action, whose grandeur and majesty no tongue can sound or mind conceive, and that the circumference of the almighty dollar is not the circumference of our existence. And so if our assembling here together is sentimental, then I glory in the noble sentiment that brings us thus together.

In the rush of life, amidst its eternal grind and uproar, it is good for us all to withdraw ourselves at times into delightful retreats like this and replenish our souls with its peace, tranquility and repose and partake of refreshments both of body and mind which our worthy faculty so lavishly and generously places at our disposal. It is good for us to meet here together and hear the old familiar strains of music of other days and see the old familiar faces in their old familiar places, and thus recall the old days in the morning of life when every prospect pleased and everything seemed radiant with joy, and we built castles in their air and perhaps formed plans for the future according to which many of us have no doubt hewed to the line ever since.

In this connection I take occasion to say that you often hear it said nowadays that college education is almost useless or superfluous; that it is often a waste of valuable time that could be spent to better purpose by earlier engaging in the actual business of life. You hear it said, for instance, that the great captains of industry and commerce carved their way to power and commanding position without the advantageous aids of college; that in fact college training often fills its votaries with false notions and theories of life which retard rather than advance college men in the great struggle of commercial existence and in the rough usage of the world. This is the claim set up by those mercenary souls who make the almighty dollar the sole criterion of their success—who set its acquisition above every other thing in life—who set it above religion, character, virtue, principle and even integrity itself. Education, for instance, of the right character and kind teaches men that our commercial career in life should be based upon sound religious principles of conduct; that all things should be made subservient to religious duty; that the acquisition of sound character is of infinitely more importance to our eternal welfare than the acquisition of millions without it, and that we should never lose sight of the enduring riches of a better world for the transitory possessions of this one. This spirit is in direct conflict with that which teaches that the almighty dollar is everything and everything else is nothing.

But waving all this, I still deny that men as a rule without college training succeed as well in life as those who are equipped with its advantages. And that you may realize this fact for yourselves, all you need do is to look over the list of distinguished names in any of the great encyclopedias at your command and you will see that the great majority of them all have been college men, and you can observe the same condition in the number of those who lead in the professions, and in commercial activities in all the great cities of the world. And enter the domain of politics and statesmanship, and you will find college men leading their vanguards to victory everywhere in every age and clime. It is true that now and then some intellect of extraordinary vigor and energy, without any college training, forges its way ahead through every difficulty to great power and success, but the same intellect would have done so more easily had it been thoroughly equipped with the advantages of a sound academic training.

Therefore I repeat that those who claim that college education is useless are thoroughly mercenary in spirit and measure every success in life to the circumstance of the dollar. They are those who care little or nothing for the formation of proper character in youth, nothing for the acquisition of sound religious principle by which to control and shape their lives, nothing for fine aspirations and sentiments, and the thousand and one good and gentle influences that enable, elevate and refine life and remove it from the sole enjoyment of mere animal existence exclusively adapted to those vulgar souls who care entirely and alone for the almighty dollar.

Therefore, my friends, to the best of our ability let us by word and act and deed help our alma mater along; let us always take a live interest in her welfare, and do all that we can upon every occasion to promote her success, for by so doing we shall advance the cause of our neighbor, the cause of religion, and the cause of humanity, and thereby make our lives noble by making them useful to ourselves and to others.

FASHION'S FOIBLES.

A charming belt of gray has the silk plaited in fine plaits lengthwise and is secured with one of those handsome French gray silver buckles in front.

The Tuxedo belt has not only the harness buckle to fasten it, but more metal parts of a harness on either side, to give it an appearance suitable to outdoor wear.

A pretty pique stock has a folded white tie a little wider than the ordinary string tie, and finished with a little fancy embroidery at the end. Ties alone come in this same style.

White silks or satins veiled in black net, grenadine, tulle, etc., are exceedingly popular, the sheer black material being most frequently treated with insect designs of chintilly lace.

Never before was so much black velvet used during a spring season as this year. The advance orders received by manufacturers foretold a great season for the ribbon, but did not tell half the story.

The unbleached hat and burned straws are rapidly gaining popularity, and there is a great demand among milliners for them just as they come from the weaver, without bleaching, coloring or stiffening.

White pique belts come with black harness buckles, with the metal not so heavy as in the nickel belt buckles. Here is something to wear with your light waists on which are smoked pearl buttons.

Batistes are being worn even more than they were last season and appear in new guises every day—plain batistes, embroidered batistes, striped batistes, dotted batistes—the list is a long one and the materials are charming.

A pongee waist is made to wear with guimpes of white. It has a fastening at the front a little different from the majority of waists. It is strapped across and the straps are fastened on either side with a pongee-covered button.

The light blue especially liked by Parisian dressmakers at the present moment is not the turquoise of last season, nor the bleu ciel angelique, but a shade called angelique, which is pale and a trifle cold, only a shade darker than last year's ice color.

In place of the pin worn at the back of the head to hold up the short hairs many young girls are now wearing small bows of narrow velvet ribbon. The short hairs are gathered up and tied by the ribbon, which has been slipped through a strand of the long hair.

There is a combination of colors to be seen also in belts for summer gowns. One of these gowns has not a bit of bright color except in the belt, which is of deep dark red ribbon. About it is a line of pink, and the pink and red appear also in a big rosette in front.

You can also use those old combinations of pastel colors on a hat. They are much better than they were in the seasons when every one was wearing them. The "everybodies" have worn out their hats trimmed in this way, and now the colors are worth trying again.

Wreaths and sprays of small flowers are worn in the hair more than the single large rose affected during the winter. Women who still affect the very high coiffure often prefer to the wreath two stiff little clusters of blossoms, one on either side the high knot of hair and showing from the front.

Champagne color is the latest mode in Paris and is seen in everything, but after all it is only a mild variation upon the modes and ecrus and is best described by its own name, for it is as nearly as possible the color of champagne. Moss green is another favorite color in Paris, combined with pale blue almost as inevitably as black and white.

APPOINTED CONSTABLE.

Tom Scally's friends are rejoicing over his appointment as Constable in the Eleventh and Twelfth wards, to succeed the late lamented Constable John Glenn. Tom possesses every qualification for the office, having had long experience as a deputy, and the interests of the survivors of his predecessor will be carefully guarded by him.

FREDDIE BURNT HIMSELF.

Freddie saw the pretty, soft steam puffing out of the kettle. His mother said: "Freddie, take care, or you'll burn your fingers, dear!" "Oh, dear," cried Freddie, "why can't I have my own way sometimes? When I'm a big man I mean to stand and poke my finger in the kettle all day, sometime, and have my own way, and—" Poor boy did not wait until he was a big man. A scream of pain told that he had his own way already. The little white fingers were sadly burned, and Freddie screamed and jumped. Take care, children, how you take your own way. There are worse foes in the world than Freddie's steam.

The Prominent Young People
United in Marriage
This Week.

One of the daintiest of the June weddings was that of Miss Lillie Weisenberger and Richard Dehoney, solemnized Wednesday morning at St. Francis of Rome church in Clifton. The sacrament of matrimony was administered by Rev. Thomas White, who celebrated the nuptial mass. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mamie, and Theodore Weisenberger was best man. Little Shelly and Adeline Newman, nephew and niece of the groom, were the flower children. The bride and maid of honor were handsomely gowned and appeared bewitchingly beautiful. Breakfast was served at Mrs. Charles Leonhart's, the bride's aunt, 1220 East Broadway, for the members of both families and invited guests. The happy couple left immediately after for the Pan-American Exposition. Miss Weisenberger is the daughter of Mrs. J. Weisenberger, and is lovely in character and most attractive in person. Richard Dehoney is one of Frankfort's most popular young business men, coming from a prominent family, and is to be congratulated upon winning so charming a woman to be his wife. Upon their return they will reside at Frankfort, where they will receive their friends.

The wedding of most fashionable interest on Wednesday, that of Thomas R. Aulsebrook and Miss Josephine Richard, was celebrated at St. Patrick's church, Monsignor Gambon officiating. Miss Florence Aulsebrook, the groom's sister, was bridesmaid, and Bud Richard, brother of the bride, was groomsmen. Little Nellie May Haus was flower girl and Master Earl Keller ring bearer, the little couple leading the wedding party to the altar. Following the ceremony the wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the groom's parents, on Montgomery street. The young couple are now in Chicago and will visit Milwaukee before returning. Miss Richard made a sweet-looking bride. Both parties are well known in the West End.

Another pretty wedding this week was solemnized Wednesday morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth street, which was filled with friends and relatives of the couple. After nuptial high mass Miss Mary Alice Nold and Charles J. Theobens were united in the holy bonds of wedlock by Rev. George Weiss, uncle of the lovely bride. The young people are very popular and prominent in our best German-American society circles. Frank Rehm was the best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Ben Hutti, John Bohlsen, Arthur Weiss, Leo Schumann and Henry Hinkelbein. A wedding breakfast for the bridal party and immediate families of the bride and groom followed the ceremony at the home of the bride. Mr. Thoben holds a confidential position with the firm of W. L. Weller & Son, and is a well-known figure on Main street.

The marriage of Miss Mayme Willis Stokes and Charles Hetherington took place Wednesday afternoon at St. Patrick's church, Monsignor Gambon performing the ceremony, which was witnessed by many friends of the contracting parties. The groomsmen were Walter Hillerich and Philip Stokes, cousin of the bride. Messrs. William Seibert, Archie Hadfield, Joseph Klein and Dr. Edward Lex acted as ushers. The bride is a pretty and accomplished young lady, and her hosts of friends will miss her from their midst. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for the East, where they will remain till July 1. Upon their return they will reside at Elmendorf, Lexington, of which city the groom is a popular and prominent resident.

Miss Mary Jeanette Hetherman and William Kirk were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon at the Cathedral, a large number of their friends witnessing the happy ceremony. Miss Hetherman is a lovely young woman, charming in manner and amiable in disposition and a decided social favorite among her wide circle of acquaintances. The groom is book-keeper for the Swann-Abraham Company, and a very popular and clever young man, well known in society and business circles.

ZENDA DANCING CLUB.

The Zenda Dancing Club will entertain their friends with a select dance at Fountain Park next Friday evening. The club members, John J. Barry, August Keim, Steve Toomey, Thomas Furlong and Pete Sutterlin, have spared neither time nor expense to make this one of the swiftest affairs of the season. They guarantee a delightful evening to their friends and lovers of the terpsichorean art who may attend. Kuehr's dance orchestra, under the special direction of Prof. Julius Kuehr, will render a special programme of all the popular hits of the season. The Louisville Railway Company has consented to run the Fountain Park cars every twenty minutes on that evening, instead of every half hour as usual.

COMMENCEMENTS.

Macaulay's Theater was filled to the doors Wednesday morning to witness the exercises closing the scholastic year of the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy. Every number on the programme was excellently rendered, but special mention should be made of Misses Henrietta Kaiser, Marie Heverin and Rose Watson, whose recitations and vocal solos were enthusiastically applauded. The "Grecian Garland Drill" was especially fine, and was pronounced by Miss Nellie Finegan and other competent judges the most artistic and correctly executed juvenile drill ever seen on the local stage. Misses Elizabeth Tarpey and Allie Rouche were the graduates.

The commencement exercises at the Presentation Academy delighted a large audience Monday morning. The programme was high-class and very artistically rendered. Medals and premiums were conferred upon a large number of pupils, whose excellent work stamps this one of the very best educational institutions in Kentucky.

HOLY CROSS CHURCH NEWS.

Thirty children received their first communion at Holy Cross church, and the event was made memorable by Rev. Father Cunningham. A special musical programme was rendered that surpassed any ever before heard in Holy Cross church. The altars were brilliant with lights and profusely decorated with cut flowers and palms.

The forty hours' devotions were inaugurated at the high mass, Rev. Father Murphy preaching the sermon of the day. The devotions closed Tuesday, and were attended by people from all sections of the city, an unusually large number approaching the sacrament.

Thursday Rev. Father Cunningham officiated at the marriage of Miss Myrtle McAtee, the pretty and lovable daughter of Mrs. Mary McAtee, and Leslie E. Jarvis, the well known butcher. Both are well known and popular in the West End. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of their friends.

ST. XAVIER'S COLLEGE.

The graduating exercises of St. Xavier's College will take place Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the new college hall on Broadway, near Second street. Those who will receive their diplomas are Messrs. Eugene McCarthy, Thomas Barrett, John T. Hannan, Thomas Fitzgerald, Lawrence C. Hackett, Edward Hannon, J. Henry Dorn, Edward Gnan, Martin Goby, Henry Kannappell, Charles Klapheke, Francis Kupper and John Ritman. A pleasing feature will be the scene from Sheridan Knowles' drama, "William Tell." The alumni address will be delivered by Mr. Joseph Sohan, of the class of '76. The class requests ladies to remove their hats upon this occasion.

WOULDN'T TRUST THE OFFICIAL.

The clerk in charge of Yorkshire, England, postoffice was annoyed by the conduct of a certain farm laborer who, by buying stamps on the very edge of closing time, frequently put him to the trouble of recasting his accounts.

"Are you really obliged to come so late with your letters, my man?" he asked one night, his stock of patience giving out.

"No," answered the laborer. "Both of these were written and addressed afore noon today."

"Then why didn't you bring them to the post straight away?"
"Not me, Mr. Clerk," replied the laborer thrusting his tongue into his cheek. "Business is slack here in t' day-time, and there's nowt to stop yer from pristin' open an' readin' every letter which comes in. But at a minute to nine," with a knowing wink at the clock, "ye've nobbut a few seconds to glance at 'envelopes and drop 'em into a bag afore t'mail-cart calls for 'em. I wants to keep temptation from yer all I can."

A terrific explosion occurred on Monday afternoon at the Cork gasworks, by which four men were injured. One of the large gasometers caught fire and all efforts to extinguish it being useless, it burned itself out.

In the Cork Police Court on Thursday the gasworkers who were charged with breach of contract by abandoning their work without notice were again brought up, but the further hearing of the case was adjourned until Saturday week.

On Monday Coroner Friery held an inquest at Monkstown Hospital on the bodies of the three young men, Steyn, Grays and O'Neill, who lost their lives on Sunday morning in the fire at George's Place, Blackrock. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

The member for Limerick will therefore be unable to fulfill any public engagements for which he may have been announced during the recess.

At Castlemartyr petty sessions a man named Edward Geary was charged with having endeavored to frustrate the ends of justice by persuading or inducing two women named Mary Anne Clarke and Catherine O'Brien to prosecute a man named Henry O'Brien, a returned American, at the ensuing Fermoy Quarter Sessions, in relation to a charge of house-breaking and assault against said Henry O'Brien, such inducement being made by an offer of a certain sum of money.

The death of Robert Ballantyne, an extensive cattle dealer and victualler, took place on Wednesday night with appalling suddenness. The deceased, in company with his son, drove out some distance into the country to inspect deceased's cattle and to purchase some sheep. While driving along the road deceased took suddenly ill and died in the trap. Ballantyne enjoyed a widespread popularity, and his painful sudden demise has caused the sincerest regret among all classes.

At Birr rifle range on Thursday Privates Johnson and Dooley, of the Lancashire, were accidentally shot, the former through the right lung and the latter in the thigh, the bone of which was shattered. A private in the same regiment named Moran was shooting with a comrade's rifle, his own having become jammed. He again, however, took up his own weapon and was getting ready to try it again, but forgot that there were cartridges in the magazine. The weapon went off, the bullet wounding the two men. Both lie in a critical condition.

A conference was held in the Mansion House on Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of considering what steps should be taken toward the revival of the shipbuilding and ship repairing industry in Dublin. There was a large attendance. On the motion of James McCann, M. Several of the speakers expressed the opinion that Dublin was most favorably circumstanced for the carrying on of a successful shipbuilding industry.

The annual general meeting of the Clongowes Union was held on Sunday at Clongowes College under the Presidency of the Lord Chief Baron. A party of about four hundred members and their friends attended. An interesting contest took place for the election of two Vice Presidents. The ballot resulted in the election of Sir William Butler and Sir Francis Cruise. Lord O'Brien obtained nine votes.

What They Have Been Doing the Past Week—General News Notes.

Division 25 of Boston will hold a smoke talk in Carroll Hall next Tuesday evening.

Division 12 of Springfield, Mass., will appear in uniform in the parade for the county field day on July 4.

Tom Riley, Peter Cusick and John Cavanaugh represented the Louisville divisions over the river Wednesday night.

The picnic of Division 1 of Jeffersonville at Forest Park last Wednesday night was a social success, the best people of the city attending in large numbers.

New Albany Hibernians are cordially invited to attend the exercises at the opening of the new hall at Seventh and Market streets next Tuesday evening. County President Kennedy and President Dan Walsh should bring large numbers with them.

Friends of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Division 36 of East Boston crowded Lyceum Hall upon the occasion of the minstrel performance given by the ladies. The show was an exceptionally good one, fourteen young women taking part. Several artists were warmly applauded for their work.

The impressive ritual of the order was used last week for the first time and the first degree conferred by Division 40 in Columbian Hall, Forest Hills, Mass. The ex-State Chaplain, Rev. John Cummins, who belongs to Division 40, made a stirring speech setting forth the principles of true Hibernianism. Three candidates were initiated and a social session followed.

On June 25 the City of Newburyport, Mass., will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary, and Division 9 will take part in the exercises. It has made arrangements for a grand demonstration and has invited all the divisions of Essex county to participate in the parade with the brothers of Division 9. The parade will be divided into divisions and the worthy County Vice President, Jeremiah Dineen, of Newburyport, will be chief marshal of the division. Division 9 was first organized in 1873, is one of the most progressive societies in the city, and is the only Catholic organization going to take part in the semi-centennial.

OLD-FASHIONED PICNIC.

An old-fashioned picnic will be given for the benefit of St. George's school next Tuesday in the shady woods of Henry Dubourg, on the Eighteenth-street road, about a mile and a half beyond the city limits. Wagons will leave the end of the Eighteenth-street car line every fifteen minutes after 10 o'clock a. m. Dinner and supper will be served on the grounds by the ladies of the congregation, who will also provide other refreshments at reasonable prices. This picnic will be given to meet the deficit of the school of St. George. Everybody is cordially invited by the pastor, the Rev. George A. Weiss, and an enjoyable time is promised all who attend.

YOUNG PEOPLE MAKE MERRY.

One of the most enjoyable affairs of the season was the ice cream festival and dance given Tuesday evening by the Magnolia Club at their club rooms on Baxter avenue and Rogers street. The committee of arrangements was composed of James Tracy, Albert Laval, Charles Laval, John McKay, Edward Martin, William Stoker, William Holtzman and John Tracy, who left nothing undone to make it pleasant and enjoyable for the large crowd that was in attendance, many of whom expressed the wish that another would be given in the near future.

DEPUTY SHERIFF.

Val Kast, one of the best-known and most popular young men in the West End, has been tendered the position of Deputy Sheriff under Dick Schmitt, Democratic candidate for re-election. Val's friends have taken off their coats and gone to work in his interest. The selection is a good one and will make many votes for Sheriff Schmitt, who has displayed excellent judgment in all his appointments.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Right Rev. Bishop McCloskey conferred the sacrament of confirmation last Sunday morning upon the class prepared by Rev. Father Weiss at St. George's church, Eighteenth street.
